The Hanford Lampoon

Downright Kosher!

A new school year means everyone gets to step up on the Social Ladder. However, this also means freshmen. Here are some tips on understanding and dealing with the little gremlins.

- 1) Freshmen are just like us, but they haven't been beaten down by the system. Give them some space and they will be depressed into silence in no time.
- 2) Pepper spray is not allowed on school grounds, so don't even think about it.
- 3) Some people sympathize with freshmen, in fact you might know some people in Link Crew. Don't believe the dogma! Treating others with respect sends the wrong message, and will likely destroy your status.
- 4) Please don't date them. You might think that a 14 year old is a great rebound, which could be true, but that's also a felony. There's a reason Officer Parrish is always watching!
- 5) Getting them addicted to nicotine is generally encouraged. This way they spend their time hitting their friend's Novo in the bathroom trying to stunt their brain, not bothering you.

All sorts of classes are offered at Hanford, but one type sticks above all the rest: AP Classes. In theory, these are a good idea. That theory gets destroyed once you talk to a single AP student. We conducted countless hours of interviews, and summarize them below.

Lampoon: Do you find AP classes too difficult?

AP Students: Challenging? HoNeY I don'T eVeN thiNk you kNow hOW hard I woRk.. In AP BeiNg Pretentious I haVe 6 HouRs oF work, a niGhT,, I haVen't sLePt in 4 DayS!1! I hAve lCe coffEE in mY VEINS,,, It's goNNa pay Off whEn I geT inTo an lVY LeaGuE uNiverSity!!11,,,maybe then my parents will love me

Another great part of Back to School is the beginning of sports. Whether you're ridiculously basic and post about FNL, or love watching Hanford lose, Fall is a beautiful time.

The football team has been practicing all summer, which would be good news except for the fact that Hanford actually gets worse the more they play. This is what's known as the Falcon Phenomena, and probably has something to do with the radiation. I feel safe bashing the football team because of one reason: I'm pretty sure they can't read (words get jumbled the when head hit much so).

On the brightside, both the Cheer team and Dance team are at football games! The cheer team never fails to get the student section excited, which is weird because I think the general consensus is that spray tans are a turn off. The dance team has the most to deal with, however. Can you imagine going onto the field and busting it down for 5 solid minutes, having no idea who's watching? I've never twerked in front of my grandma before, but I'm sure it must give quite a rush.

Let's be real for a minute. The real reason people come to football games is for the Marching Band. There's something incredible about taking two very mundane things (Marching and Band) and combining them into one of the longest 10 minutes of your life. Do we really have to stand and clap every time?

On the forgotten sports, like cross country and swim, just give up. No one has ever gone to one of your events. At least band is sandwiched between something that is actually fun to watch.
